

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO FACULTY OF LAW

The Indigenous Law Students' Association (ILSA) provides a social and support network for Indigenous students at the Faculty of Law.

Members can meet, eat, study, relax, and perform ceremonies in the ILSA office.

ILSA also hosts social and educational activities throughout the year.

Toronto is home to Indigenous people from across Turtle Island and around the world. Dozens of Indigenous organizations and events support our community and its diversity, including Toronto Aboriginal Support Services Council, Aboriginal Legal Services and imagineNATIVE Film & Media Arts Festival.

COMMUNITY

INDIGENOUS LAW STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION (ILSA)

FACULTY AND THE CURRICULUM

INDIGENOUS INITIATIVES OFFICE (IIO)

The IIO works to support Indigenous JD students and educate all law students, staff and faculty on Indigenous topics and perspectives through extra-curricular programming such as an annual speaker series, educational trips and more.

The Faculty's goal is to integrate Aboriginal and Indigenous law, and Indigenous perspectives and history, in the JD curriculum, with opportunities throughout to deepen knowledge and understanding.

- JD/Certificate in Aboriginal Legal Studies
- Externships with Aboriginal Legal Services and the Ontario Human Rights Commission
- Kawaskimhon Moot, a national moot that incorporates Indigenous laws
- Intensive courses on traditional Indigenous legal systems
- Indigenous Law Journal

For questions about U of T Law or any of our Indigenous initiatives, contact iio.law@utoronto.ca or 416-978-2583

INDIGENOUS INITIATIVES OFFICE