WELCOME TO THE FACULTY OF LAW

At the University of Toronto, we offer one of the world's outstanding legal educations. To be a student at our law school is to join a wonderful community of the finest legal scholars and students, working together in the pursuit of academic and professional excellence. You will learn from our esteemed faculty, who frequently win major research awards, and are significant thought leaders in academia, the legal profession and public policy. I hope you will take the time to discover our unique programs and some of North America's most established co-curricular opportunities that will acquaint you with the best of the legal profession both locally and internationally. You may work on criminal appeals pending before the Ontario Court of Appeal or Supreme Court of Canada, volunteer for the UN while on an international human rights internship, or participate in a business law moot court competition.

Our commitment to accessibility, diversity and the public interest means that as a student, you will experience a community with a wide range of knowledge and perspectives. A legal education at U of T not only teaches legal doctrine, but equips our students with analytical tools that can be brought to bear on a range of legal and other problems. Our graduates go on to leadership positions in public interest organizations, politics, business, and on the bench and bar with an education that serves them well in making a positive impact on our community.

I am excited about the future of our law school. Our new building, set to open in 2016, will include innovative technology and will house many of the programs and centres that make this Faculty truly unique. Expanded classrooms and social spaces will create dynamic engagement opportunities for students, professors and the community.

I sincerely hope that you'll take up the opportunity to visit with us as you carefully consider the many options available to you.

New Grads to Watch

Promise Holmes Skinner (JD 2013) is the only person in her extended family to attend law school and the only person in her immediate family to have entered university. Promise pursued her passion in criminal law by articling at the prominent criminal defence firm, Greenspan Humphrey Lavine. There, she assisted in preparing material for the defences of Clifford Kokopenace (R v. Kokopenace) – a case concerning First Nations people in Northern Ontario, recently decided on by the Supreme Court of Canada, and Justin Bieber (R v. Bieber).

Outside the courtroom, Promise volunteers for Aboriginal and LGBT initiatives. As an executive member of the Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity Section of the Ontario Bar Association, she co-led Ontario lawyers in their first ever march in the 2014 World Pride Parade.

A woman of Anishinaabe descent, Promise now works as the Manager, Gladue Program Specialist, at Aboriginal Legal Services Toronto.

Selection

Our admissions process is designed to identify exceptional students who bring a broad and complex set of life experiences to the study of law.

We consider all aspects of your application: academic, intellectual and personal.

The assessment is based two-thirds on the academic record and LSAT, and one-third on personal information. Our “whole person review” includes at least three readers, including faculty, staff and students. We have no quotas of any kind. We seek outstanding candidates from a wide variety of institutions, who come from across Canada and the world, of a variety of ages, with varied life experiences. This careful process allows us to assemble a vibrant and inclusive class where you will flourish.

Admission Categories

For entry to the first year, there are three main admission categories:

General – the majority of applicants

Aboriginal – Aboriginal people, including those of Indian (status and non-status), Métis and Inuit heritage, whose representation in the legal profession we strive to improve.

Mature – those who have at least five complete years of non-academic experience (outside of full-time study) by September 2016.

Admission Requirements

PEER MENTORING PROGRAM

You'll be matched with an upper-year student mentor who will provide the "inside scoop" about making your first year a success from academic support to co-curricular and social activities.

YOUR 1L YEAR

Our 1L Program encourages you to develop close connections with your peers and professors. In addition to six substantive law courses, you take two courses that prepare you to study law: Legal Methods and Legal Research and Writing.

LEGAL METHODS INTENSIVE

One of the central goals of our JD Program is to train you to "think like a lawyer". The first year begins with a legal methods intensive course delivered during the last two weeks in August. The course introduces you to the foundational information and reasoning needed to make the most of the JD program from the minute you set foot in your first substantive class in September.

LEGAL RESEARCH AND WRITING (LRW)

The work product of lawyers consists of words. These words must be carefully selected based on deep understanding and research. In this course, legal research and writing experts guide you through a series of carefully designed research and writing assignments to equip you to produce well-crafted legal text.

SUBSTANTIVE LAW COURSES

Every student has one of the principal first year courses in a year-long small group of 16 students. The remaining five substantive law classes are taught in larger groups over a single term (two in first term and three in second term).

Collectively, our first year provides you with a deep and rigorous legal foundation rooted in diverse academic views about law and legal methodology.

Clinical Legal Education: Each year, 140+ students provide direct legal services to low-income clients through Downtown Legal Services. Services include drafting pleadings, developing case strategies, and conducting negotiations. Additional clinical opportunities include: Advocates for Injured Workers; the Barbra Schlifer Commemorative Clinic; the Asper Constitutional Advocacy Clinic; and the International Human Rights Clinic.

Pro Bono Students Canada (PBSC): Founded at the Faculty in 1996, PBSC is a national, award-winning pro-bono organization with chapters at 21 law schools in Canada. PBSC provides legal services without charge to organizations and individuals in need in all areas of law. As one example, PBSC's Family Law Project places students in family law courts across Canada, where they work with duty counsel lawyers to provide legal information and document preparation assistance to low-income clients.

International Human Rights Program (IHRP): Focus on international human rights advocacy through clinical projects and working groups that will have you drafting United Nations submissions or advocating before courts and tribunals.

In the summer of 2015, the IHRP placed students at some of the most prestigious human rights organizations in the world including the UN Refugee Agency and Human Rights Watch, and grassroots organizations around the world.

David Asper Centre for Constitutional Rights: Clinic students have the opportunity to work on leading constitutional and Charter rights cases at the highest courts in Canada, while working group students can learn legal researching skills through projects on current issues in constitutional law. Past topics have included internet surveillance legislation and practices, as well as Canadian citizenship and immigration laws. Summer opportunities exist to work with the Asper Centre on these issues through research and casework, and with domestic human rights organizations within Canada.

Law in Action Within Schools (LAWS): This unique three-year high-school program, also founded at the law school, partners with Osgoode Hall Law School and the Toronto District School Board to provide inner-city students with interactive learning experiences related to legal and social issues, the justice system, and legal sector careers. LAWS is a critical part of our commitment to ensuring legal education is accessible to talented, diverse students. As a law student, you can volunteer as a LAWS after-school tutor, workshop facilitator, mock trial coach and field trip leader.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT THAT MAKES EVERYTHING POSSIBLE

Choosing to go to law school is a significant and rewarding investment in your life. If you are offered admission, tuition should not be a barrier to your education or your career. The Faculty of Law's approach to financial aid is different than most law schools. With less than a handful of merit scholarships available, we apply an equitable and transparent approach to giving aid, where the students with the greatest financial need receive the most assistance.

Apply for financial aid as soon as you have an offer in hand and we will provide an estimate of the support available to you for your first year.

UNIQUE IN CANADA, POST-GRADUATION DEBT RELIEF PROGRAM

The rumours are true: most law students in North America graduate with some debt. They also go on to fulfilling positions in a range of fields. Many of our students choose to dedicate themselves to legal aid clinics or specialty law firms that offer relatively lower-paying salaries. To support their career choices, we assist these students by repaying their eligible law school debt for up to ten years after graduation. This is the only program of its kind in Canada.

FINANCIAL AID IN ACTION

“When I started first year, I had no assets or savings, and I came from a single-parent family that could not afford to help me out. I received a significant amount of bursaries that offset tuition and allowed me to pay my bills. In the summer after first year, I worked at a Bay Street law firm and earned a Bay Street salary. In keeping with my ability to pay, I received much less financial aid [in 2L]. I think the program is very fair because it is designed to reflect what students are actually able to pay.”
