

CAN LEGAL ETHICS

BE TAUGHT ?

when:

April 4, 2008

where:

Faculty of Law, Flavelle House,
Room FLA, 78 Queen's Park,
Toronto

time:

9:00 am to 4:00 pm

register

[www.law.utoronto.ca/
conferences/legalethics.html](http://www.law.utoronto.ca/conferences/legalethics.html)

For further information, please contact
conferences.law@utoronto.ca

A symposium by the University of Toronto's Centre for Professionalism, Ethics and Public Service

What is the future of legal ethics in legal education? Can legal ethics be taught in the classroom, or is an experiential learning environment required? Is there a role for legal regulators, law firms and legal organizations in teaching legal ethics?

Moderators and Speakers:

Janine Benedet (UBC)	Freya Kristjanson (BLG)
Joseph Cheng (Dept of Justice)	Janet Leiper (Osgoode)
Michael Code (U of T)	Trudo Lemmens (U of T)
Brent Cotter (Saskatchewan)	Mayo Moran (U of T)
Richard Devlin (Dalhousie)	Janet Mosher (Osgoode)
Adam Dodek (Toronto)	Paul Paton (Queen's)
Jocelyn Downie (Dalhousie)	Stephen Pitel (Western)
Trevor Farrow (Osgoode)	Lorne Sossin (U of T)
Avvy Ya-Ya Go (MTCSALC)	Robert Wai (Osgoode)
Randal Graham (Western)	Alice Woolley (Calgary)
Allan Hutchinson (Osgoode)

Centre for Professionalism, Ethics &
Public Service

A gathering place for dialogue on effective lawyering, ethical practice and community leadership.

Sponsored by the University of Toronto Faculty of Law

