

Join the Indigenous Law Journal As an ASSOCIATE EDITOR!

The ILJ covers issues of social justice, international law, restorative justice, Aboriginal sovereignty & self-governance, reconciliation, ground-breaking Canadian law, legal issues in Australia & New Zealand and more!!!

As an ASSOCIATE EDITOR, you will:

- Read ~4 papers in first semester, and review one paper more closely.
- Meet in an engaging and collaborative Cell Group to discuss the papers, and come to a consensus on which papers will be passed up to the Senior Editorial Board (cell groups meet between October 15 and October 23).
- Write a rejection letter summarizing the strengths and areas for improvement for one paper.
- Work with your Cell Group in second semester to provide in-depth feedback to select authors.

Prior knowledge of Indigenous legal issues is NOT required - all you need is an interest in learning more about the subject!

Hear more about the ILJ at the clubs fair on Tuesday, September 13th.

To join, attend the Associate Editor Training Session:
1 FREE LUNCH - week of September 26th - (room/date TBA).

Please also sign up here (link). If you are unable to attend training, let us know.

More info available on our website: <http://ilj.law.utoronto.ca> or email Jesse Waslowski (j.waslowski@mail.utoronto.ca) or Sinead Charbonneau (sinead.dearman@mail.utoronto.ca)