

The LLJ is a refereed, open access journal that publishes articles, case comments, book reviews, and book notes on legal issues in Canada. The LLJ is run by an Editorial Team made up of both students and faculty, with Dr. Mariette Brennan serving as Editor-in-Chief.

Call for Papers Vol 3, No 1 (2017)

The LLJ is pleased to invite submissions on any topic in the legal field for publication. All topics are welcome and we are particularly interested in papers that explore:

1. Aboriginal legal issues
2. Rural, northern, and small firm practice
3. Natural resources and environmental law

The LLJ fills a significant niche in the legal scholarship landscape. In addition to focusing on Aboriginal legal issues, legal practice, and environmental law, we also publish papers that are shorter than typical academic articles. Our hope is that shorter pieces (7000 words) will be more accessible to busy lawyers and judges, and hence more likely to be cited in judgments and thereby play a part in shaping the law.

Please visit llj.lakeheadu.ca for information on the online submission process, requirements, and journal policies. All new authors seeking to submit must register at the site. The registration process is simple and once registered, authors can submit work and track the status of their submissions.

If you prefer to send your submission by email, please send your submission as a word document to Adam Mason or Melanie Mayhew-Hammond, Managing Editors, at lawjournal@lakeheadu.ca. Any inquiries should also be directed to the managing editors.

The LLJ appreciates all submissions and is committed to providing an update on the status of submissions within six weeks.
